

World Record Falls in Dayton River Corridor Classic Half-Marathon

by Ray Olfky

Dayton

September 25

Paul Cummings of Provo, Utah, broke the world half-marathon record by completing the Seventh Annual Dayton River Corridor Classic in a time of 1:01:31.5. Since the Classic began in 1977, the word around running circles was that this 13.1 mile course was extremely fast and could very well be the setting for a world record. Part of the attraction for top-flight runners was the chance to "go for it". Over the past six years, many of the world's best have tried and come close. On September 25, the probable became a reality. This year a strong, competitive field was assembled by Harry Kaplun, the weather cooperated, and Cummings was ready. Of the twenty world-class competitors, Cummings and Geoff Smith of Providence, Rhode Island and Liverpool, England, were up to the test and engaged in a furious battle through twelve and three-quarter miles.

From the start, it appeared that Smith was after the record. Cummings, probably the most impressive American runner currently on the circuit, with no less than a third place finish in his last fifteen races, hung on behind Smith. At times, Cummings trailed by 50 meters or so, but was always within striking distance. The two passed ten miles in 46:36. Smith's torrid pace kept the pressure on Cummings. At twelve miles, Cummings moved to Smith's shoulder and the two matched stride for stride. With 600 meters to go, Cummings made his move and "went for it". Smith could not respond. Cummings broke the previous world mark of 1:01:35 held by Michael Musyoki of Kenya. Mark Curp of Kansas City was third in 1:02:55.

The women's race was controlled by Sue King of Mobile, Alabama, as she ran away in 1:13:54, finishing 54th overall. Her closest competition came from Smithville's Jane Buch, (1:16:16) and Julie Isphording of Cincinnati (1:17:06). King ran her best half-marathon. She also set PR's at five and ten miles, slowing only after mile eleven with the race well in hand.

The competition was intense across the board, with only three seconds separating fifth through seventh place. Kevin Foley, 28, finished fifth in 1:04:20, the best time of any Ohio competitor. The top 100 finishers received recognition medallions. Those who ran a time of 1:17:00 or better were included in this elite group.

The Classic, which has built a reputation of excellence across the nation over the past six years has now placed itself in the record books. As always, the course and organization lived up to its reputation. The record time places this event along side the finest road-races in the country. As its name implies, this race is definitely a "classic".

Dayton River Corridor Classic — The View from Place 332

Weather: Ideal. Cool (55-60 degrees), sunny, low humidity . . . PR conditions.
Recent Background: A relatively good, but not sensational fall 10K season. I raced every weekend somewhere within a sixty mile radius of Dayton. The last three 10K times were in the high 37's; not too shabby for a fifty-year-old male. However, I hadn't done any marathon training (or even half-marathon training) this fall. This would be the first fall since 1977 that I scheduled no marathons as I qualified for Boston '84 at Boston '83. Usually I just train right through "the corridor" on the way to a twenty-sixer in Detroit, Columbus, or Louisville. Therefore, I felt a little uneasy, but secretly hoped to "skate" through it with 10K speed reduced a bit. WRONG!

The Race:

Mile	Split
1	5:52	The usual struggle to get moving. I just wanted 6:00
2	12:00	In the groove and right on schedule.
3	18:15	I slowed a bit but felt ok. I hoped to hold this pace for a while.
4	24:37	I slowed even more. Roland Anspach passed me looking strong.
5	31:00	A tough mile, helped only by the silent company of a young little blonde lady in new Tiger racing flats, until she left me in the dust.
6	37:20	I picked it up a bit and felt better . . . temporarily.
7	43:50	I struggled to hold form. The "Delaware duo", Bob Coldren and Huey Long blew me away on Stewart Street bridge, followed shortly thereafter by Centerville's Don Williams, looking good in spite of an injury problem.
8	50:30	I'm really hurting now. The body was only expecting 10K! Old rival and friend, Pete Donahue almost apologetically moved around me with no problem.
9	57:00	Sinking fast! Everyone else seemed to be passing me.
10	63:50	I still held dim hope of 84 minutes, but just barely.
11	70:52	No hope! I just wanted to get it over with and go hide somewhere, sip a cold brew and re-evaluate.
12	78:00	Three minutes off schedule and firmly entrenched in survival pace.
Finish	86:03	I ran a 7:19 pace the last 1.1 miles. The old "survival shuffle" got me through the last quarter. Shaking my head as I go through the finish chute and hear my time. Of the seven "corridors", this one ranks fifth in terms of time.

Postscript: There are always lessons to be learned from having one's plans, racing or otherwise, go amiss. In this case, the point was hammered home that overdistance training is a must, no matter what the race distance. Twenty milers are needed to build the endurance to race 13 miles. Galloway is right: limit your 10K's to every other weekend and go long on the alternate weekend. I'm in training for 1984!
